COURT OF ENQUIRY. The inquiry into the charge against the officers of the American barque C. O. Whitmore of cruelty to the craw on the voyage from time. Cardiff to this port was resumed at the United States Consulate yesterday.

The Consul stated during the praceedings that this was not a "United States Consular I the cantain. Court," as it und been designated in one of the papers. He was sitting there as a ministerial officer, not an a judicial officer, and he was simply making this inquiry with a view to ascertain whether the men had received such nated in the Act of Congress, as would justify him in discharging them with three months wages above what they were otherwise entitled or further action in the matter.

The auptain produced the log-book of the ship rom Cardiff to Hongkong. The Consul requested him to bring his official

The coolies of course ceased work, not knowing what might be the meaning of so apparently threatening a demonstration. On the crowd coming up to them, one or two, who seemed to be the apokesmen, addressing the natonished coolies, said they considered that the work on the line in the neighbourhood of their village belonged of right to them, that they intended to do it in-luture, and that therefore they must request the coolies to give up their tools quietly, or they would be taken from thom! The coolies being in the minority, doubtless thought discretion the better part of valour, and yielded their tools, which were at once taken by some of the villagers, who immediately commenced work, and continued till the close of day. In the meantime, the coolies reported the occurrence to their head man, and he at once proceeded to Shanghai with the information; being soon followed, however, by two of the villagers, as a deputation to the managers of the live, to represent the view taken of the matter at Kongwan. The deputation were informed that the Company could only regard their engaged coolies as their workmen and that if the villagers thought proper to continue the work on that portion of the line, they would not be paid for their labour. The following morning again found the villagers at their self-appointed task, but towards-avening-it-was-deemed-better-to-take some more notive steps to restore the ordinary course of things, and Mr. Penfold was communiented with. Tue villagers have at length crased their self-appointed task; and, as we understand, there is no great hurry for the completion of work, the officials are taking time to consider the course they will ultimately adopt .- Daily News.

YAURT CLUB. This Regatta was sailed on the 25th ultimo under favourable circumstances as regarde weather, though scarcely so as regards wind, which coming from the North, with occasionally a good touch of Easting, made it anything but a pleasure trip to the Red Buoy, round which from buoys moored abreast of the Police Hulk the course extended. For the first time in the annals of the Club, the yacht ruce was made a -handicup justend of a time contest, and the handicappers had taken pains to allot what were deemed the requisite time intervals at starting for six yachte, viz., the Vineta, Nimrod, Kelpie, Lillie, Pasatom, Gwendolin, and Fearless. Only the three yachts first named, how. over, came to the buoys to take part in the race, though the Lillie, Phanton, and some others starting about the same time, helped to to make up a better show than was anticipated. A soparate race for les-board houseboats, over the same course, and starting only eight minutes earlier than the first of the yachts, also added to the pleasure of the scene off the Garden Bund, which was, however, witnessed by but comparatively few spectators. The houseboat race was to have been started at-10.80, but owing to certain apprehensions as to the probable strength of the tide, which was expected to make at Woosung at about noon, it was deemed advisable to let them go at 10.17 and an arrangement was also made by which the Umpire, who of course travelled in a steam launch, was empowered, if he saw the earling craft in any difficulty as to rounding the Rad Buoy, to shorten the course by directing them to found the men-of-war instead of proceeding further. Fortunately, although the tide turned some time before the frigates were reached, the wind held with sufficient force to enable the whole course to be sailed, though only by contiqual tacking. The prizes were, as usual, atlver cups, that for the yachts being worth 75, and for the bouseboats, $50. The latter craft, being the first to get away, first claim attention.

They all got off well together, and being sharpbowed boats, their build soon enabled it to be seen that they were likely to make almost as quick a race of it as the vachts themselves, despite the adverse wind. But the houseboats slipped slong no fast, that they had gained several tacks before the expiration of the eight migutes interval: At length, all being fairly under weigh, it. was soon found that hard work and little pleasure was the order of the day-a long lag and a shortone being necessary until Collier's Dock was reached. THE TWO WORKERS. Two workers in one field Toiled on from day to day. Buth had the same hard labour. Both had the same small pay. With the same blue sky above, "The same green earth below. One soul was full of love, The other full of weg. Our leaped up with the light, With the scring of the lark, The felt it over hight, --For his soul was ever dark. One heart was hard as stone, One heart was ever guy, One worked with many a groan, One whistled all the day. One had a flower-olad cot Beside a merry mill. Wife and children near the spot . Made it sweeter, fairer still; Oue a wretched hovel had. Full-of-discord diet and din-No wonder he seemed mad-Wife and children starved within. Still they worked in the same field, Toiling on from day-to day-: Both had the same hard labour. Bith bnd the same small pay;

THE WOMAN OF PLEASURE.

But they worked not with one will,

The reason let me tell:

For the woman of pleasure we have no respect. How is it possible? She is a person for whom selfish enjoyment is the law of life. and duty only a disagreeable accident to be avoided with as much diligence as one wouldavoid any other painful circumstance or distressing hindrane -- a malady, say, or a wisfortune, a noxious animal, or a hideous moneter. She knows nothing higher than self-indulgence, and amusement takes the place with her that intellect takes with some and love with others. To be well-dressed and to the front in all the gaieties; on hand her ambition. She will take more trouble, eyes, but the splendid matron, the sound, undergo more fatigue, and submit to more mortification in the cause of pleasure than an cause of duty. A zealot and an enthusiast zealots and enthusiasts are not of every-day. occurrence, and the woman of pleasure out-weighs as she out-numbers them. The ripen; they fade, "The style is the man," nowers which are inexhaustible in the service of pleasure come to an end with a breath when the question is of daty. Ask the woman of pleasure, who can dance from ten to-four without fatigue, to go upstairs and "run through her linen." The whole thing will he done in half-an-hour, or less, but whe would declare herself utterly unable to bear such strain on her nerves, and such fatigue of musoics. Ask her to take charge of her calldren for the same length of time-talf-anhour, no more. She can spend three hours on end shooting at a target with a heavy how; she can skate from ten to one without more intermission than just the little halts made to enable her to greet her friends and begin her flirtations with better effect; she can drive for hours holding her two spirited ponies with no light hand; but to hold a clock-to have three little children round her, talking to her of their toys or their lessons, their loves or their sorrows, gives a headache to one who can bear the clatter of the streets and the chatter of a ball-room she hears the birds singing in the heaves as she goes out into the fields to milk the ci ws. But the one is duty, and the other things are pleasure: and the woman of whom we write finds the former unutterably irksome, while the latter is light, no matter what the intriusic weight of its burden. The one place in the world most hateful to the woman of pleasure is her own home. eave when filled with strange people; and a passed in the companionship only of her family, ranks with her as the most fearful infliction short of actual terture that can be devised. As to her husband, he is good as the living machine by which money is to be ground out, and his name is a tower of strongth, just as her state of married woman is a protection; but do you think that the women of pleasure can love or do love, as men count love, and as the truer kind of woman loves? As little as she sacrifices whose wishes are to stand between her and groun some more. It was a bad caso.
